Interpretation

Question: 1) In a multi-site school-age program, does the school-age site coordinator act in place of the school-age director when the director is not on site?

2) When the school-age director of a multi-site school-age program is on vacation, can the school age site coordinator act as director or does the facility need a director-qualified person to assume the position of director?

Discussion:

Day care center rules allow a two-tier administration structure for multi-site school-age programs where the school-age director of a multi-site school-age program may be responsible for up to six different school-age sites. The director continues to have the responsibility to ensure that all school-sites comply with the licensing standards for day care centers. The school-age site coordinator, who may not qualify to be a director, has responsibility for each school-age site and is to be on site when the director is not.

In a single site school-age program where there is a director per center, a staff member who meets the qualifications for a day care center director must be designated to assume decision-making responsibility whenever the child care director is off site.

Whenever a director of a multi-site school-age program is on vacation or otherwise absent, a staff member who meets the qualifications for a day care center director must be designated to assume decision-making responsibility for the sites.

Response:

1) The school-age site coordinator does not act as director in place of the multi-site school-age director when this person is not on site. The director continues to have the responsibility of the day to day operation of all sites. The school-age site coordinator has responsibility for the site.

2) Whenever a director of a multi-site school-age program is on vacation or otherwise absent, the program must have a staff member who meets the qualifications of a director to function as director.
